COPYRIGHT AND YOU

01

You are a copyright holder! The research papers you write for classes, your musical compositions, artwork, and these are copyrightable works, and you are the owner! For exceptions, see 2.9, 5.3.1, and 7.1.3 here: http://bit.ly/ECU\_PRR.

02

The University has a right to use your work for further teaching and research. See 5.7.2 here: http://bit.ly/ECU\_PRR.

03

Class notes are not your copyrighted works – they are derivatives of the professor’s lectures, and you may not sell them. See 7.1.3 here: http://bit.ly/ECU\_PRR.

04

Plagiarism: While proper citation is an important TO-DO for acceptable academic work, it will not protect you if you have misappropriated someone else’s work.

05

Downloading music and videos: Use Netflix, Hulu, Amazon, or other legal sites. Avoid illegal P2P sites! See http://bit.ly/ECU\_P2P for more info.
